OVERVIEW

The 15th Biennial International Symposium, hosted by FDCPMC, brings together members of the plastics industry, packaging converters and food companies with international government officials and scientists to discuss topics of import to these various stakeholders. Attendees and speakers commonly include regulators and scientists from governmental oversight bodies and laboratories around the world. The International Symposium provides a unique opportunity to engage in constructive conversations around safety and regulatory compliance, and to develop global cooperation among our industry.

This year's conference will be the first International Symposium in four years due to the COVID-19 pandemic, and PLASTICS is excited to reconvene with attendees, speakers and guests from the Americas, Europe, and Asia. This year's symposium will take place at a new hotel that is easily accessible from Dulles International Airport and is conveniently located for sightseeing and touring in Washington, DC.
